

GDPR

In one sentence

We are happy to announce that 2Simple is currently compliant with GDPR ahead of its introduction to law on 25/05/2018.

The full statement

By this statement 2Simple is seeking to inform employees, customers, business partners and suppliers of its commitment to good data protection practice and its ongoing GDPR compliance.

The EU General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) becomes effective on 25 May 2018. The GDPR has brought considerable changes to data protection law both in the UK and across the European Economic Area.

2Simple has always sought to ensure compliance with data protection law and these practices have stood it in good stead in advance of GDPR.

In 2017 2Simple commenced a programme to ensure its compliance with GDPR. Further to this programme, 2Simple can now confirm that it has:

- An established privacy governance structure.
- Embedded GDPR requirements into policies and day-to-day activities.
- Implemented technical measures to ensure GDPR compliance.
- Documented and recorded compliance measures.
- Implemented internal training for GDPR compliance.
- Audited data protection measures with audit results used to implement compliance.

2Simple recognises that GDPR is new for many of its customers, business partners and suppliers who are modifying their own data protection practices and operations to ensure GDPR compliance and 2Simple will provide assistance with this wherever it can.

2Simple is also aware that GDPR provisions allow member states to enact new legislation specifying, restricting, or expanding the scope of the GDPR's requirements.

To respond to the needs of its customers, business partners and suppliers and any new legislation, 2Simple will keep its GDPR programme under review and will continue to provide updates of its data protection practices and compliance.
